Leaving Albuquerque, the line through the neart of Arizona - that richest of our Territories in gold and silver, but the most difficult to reach-presents no serious difficulties. Long valleys, running in the right direction, bear it onward towards the border of California, whence, turning the southern extremity of the great Sierra Nevada range, it passes up through Southern California, midway be tween the mountains and the ocean, to San Francisco, touching the fine port of San Diego by a short branch, and the head of the Gulf of California and the port of Guaymas, if

This route may be somewhat longer than that through Utah and Nevada, but its gradients will be so much less that it will more than compensate for this lengthening of the line. For all purposes for which a railroad is desired to be shorter, to wit, greater speed and economy of transportation, it is believed that this is really the shorter line. But whether longer in miles than the other is not yet known, for the length of line necessary to wind through the labyrinthine mountains of Utah is yet an unknown quantity.
